

Art Deco Glass and Brass Clock - Kienzle, Germany

The simple styling of this rose glass and brass desk timepiece is typical of the 1930s.

The brass case is polished and lacquered. It comprises a chapter ring with raised brass Roman numerals on a black-painted rim. This is raised on the brass base with two simple supports.

The clock hands are contained within the two sheets of circular rose-coloured glass.

The eight-day movement by Kienzle is hidden behind the central brass disk. It has a built-in key, and has been fully overhauled within our workshops.
